

ABORTION

and the overturning of Roe v Wade
by the US Supreme Court

NEW ZEALAND
MEDIA COVERAGE
ANALYSIS

Introduction

This analysis looks at 135 New Zealand published media articles and opinion pieces on the topic of abortion and the overturning of Roe v Wade by the US Supreme Court, as they appeared online in the major media outlets during the period between June 25 2022 and July 9 2022.

The objective was to assess the extent to which this set of articles and op-eds, as a whole, provided balanced coverage of both sides of the debate – consistent with the New Zealand Media Council's first principle of "accuracy, fairness and balance."¹

This period covers only the two weeks following the overturning of Roe v Wade. Although not directly a New Zealand issue, the number of published stories reveals both the media and public interest, and the potential political implications in New Zealand following the decision.

Most of the articles obtained were based on the list provided by NZ Politics Daily, a comprehensive, nonpartisan list of articles, columns, and analysis relating to New Zealand politics and government, produced by the Democracy Project at Victoria University of Wellington. This list was used to provide a neutral information source for the analysis, and to avoid any accusation of selecting articles that leaned to one side or the other of the debate.

Whilst most articles were written by New Zealand journalists and commentators, this analysis includes some US contributors whose work was republished on New Zealand mainstream media platforms.

The report examines 88 News Articles and 47 Opinion Editorials (Op-Eds).

Bias towards one or other point of view in any single news piece is not in itself necessarily bad, and an Op-Ed by its nature tends to reflect a particular position on any given issue. Problems arise however when the totality of news coverage across all news outlets leans too strongly in one direction or the other on that issue. This would breach the Media Council's principle of "accuracy, fairness and balance."

Biases towards one direction or the other were ranked over a variety of measures; the headline and images used, people quoted as either supporting (Pro-Abortion) or opposing (Pro-Life) abortion, and overall bias. Articles or Op-Eds which only quoted research or data without further commentary or opinion were deemed to be neutral.

The statistical analysis has been audited by an Emeritus Professor with expertise in research methods and statistics.

The report was commissioned and produced by Family First New Zealand.

Headlines & Images – News Articles

Many readers do not have time to read the entire article, and in fact may only read the headline or see a related image. In an online environment, the headline may often be the only content consumed and is therefore an increasingly important measure of media coverage.

On balance, most headlines examined did not seek to influence the reader.

Headlines were mostly neutral - Yes (25), No (4), Neutral (59).

However, a small bias was measured, with over one quarter (28%) of all headlines promoting the Pro-Abortion position, but only 5% promoting the Pro-Life position.

In summary, two-thirds of headlines were not biased, but of those that were, the bias towards the Pro-Abortion position was nearly five times that of the Pro-Life position.

By contrast, primary images were almost entirely neutral (77) with the remaining 11 biased to Pro-Abortion. Several stories use multiple images, so it was difficult to precisely compare across stories. Overall, however, no significant bias in the use of images was observed.

Comments From Advocates – News Articles

Advocates, MPs and commentators expressing a Pro-Abortion opinion were quoted significantly more often than those voicing a Pro-Life opinion.

- 75 articles featured at least one quote from a Pro-Abortion position.
- 30 articles featured at least one quote from a Pro-Life position.

11 out of the 88 news stories reported neutrally on the facts without further elaboration, and were excluded from the remainder of this analysis which focuses on third party commentary and opinions about the court ruling. A further 30 stories quoted opinions from both sides of the issue, although not always in a balanced manner.

Articles quoting those from a Pro-Abortion position were published more than twice as often as those expressing Pro-Life sentiments, and on average they quoted more commentators. There were 207 Pro-Abortion quotes across 75 stories compared to just 50 Pro-Life quotes across 30 stories.

[Coding quotes was a challenge since some politicians defined themselves Pro-Life privately but had Pro-Abortion remarks attributed to them e.g. Leader of the National Party Christopher Luxon² and Labour Cabinet Minister Nanaia Mahuta³.]

Number Of Times Each Position Was Quoted

In summary, significant bias was observed in both the number of stories that failed to quote a Pro-Life opinion (47) and the serious weighting towards Pro-Abortion views apparent in some stories. One story by Stuff quoted 10 Pro-Abortion opinions but not a single Pro-Life opinion. Another, also by Stuff, quoted 17 Pro-Abortion opinions and one Pro-Life opinion.

Overall News Articles Bias

The overall bias was a subjective score based on all the elements measured and reflected in the indices we surveyed. For each article, the combined Pro-Abortion and Pro-Life scores totalled 100% (eg 100+0, 80+20, 50+50, etc.)

Across 77 news articles containing at least some commentary, 82% of the total content was Pro-Abortion and 18% of the total content was Pro-Life.

Overall bias score distribution for News Articles*

Overall Bias Score	Pro-Abortion Articles (Number)	Pro-Life Articles (Number)
100% Bias	44	2
90/70% Bias	13	1
60/40% Minimal Bias	5	1
50/50% No Bias	11

* There were 11 additional articles based on reported facts only without commentary

In summary, 50% of all news articles were entirely Pro-Abortion biased and made no mention of Pro-Life opinions.

The observed bias across News Articles was 82% Pro-Abortion versus 18% Pro-Life.

This means stories were nearly 350% more biased towards the Pro-Abortion position.

Average News Bias

This significant amount of bias is based not only on the disproportionate coverage of Pro-Abortion vs Pro-Life, but also the way concerns were addressed. Politicians who voiced their Pro-Life views (e.g. National MP Simon O'Connor⁴) were regularly referred to with derogatory or critical comments – a similar trend to what we observed in the ‘conversion therapy’ media coverage analysis also.⁵

Eleven stories were evenly balanced and a further six stories were minimally biased (60/40% either way). Consequently, 19% of stories might be considered fair coverage of both positions.

Op-Eds

There were a significant number of Opinion Editorials (47) published regarding the Supreme Court decision during the short two-week coverage period.

Much like the News Articles, a significant bias was observed across all Op-Eds.

61% of all Op-Eds were Pro-Abortion biased, with not a single Op-Ed presenting a Pro-Life position.

The Op-Eds found to be neutral were mostly about how the National Party was handling the issue of abortion, rather than an even-handed discussion about the merits or otherwise of the Supreme Court decision.

Outlet Bias

Of the major news media outlets who published five or more News Articles or Op-Eds, the newest radio station in the media – Today FM – was the most biased outlet with a 100% Pro-Abortion coverage of the issue. (Five of the eight articles were Opinion-Editorials.)

Excluding Today FM, every other major media outlet published an article on the Roe v Wade issue averaging one a day for the coverage period, although Stuff and the NZ Herald were publishing articles at two or more per day on average.

Of these other media outlets, Radio New Zealand was the most biased with 89% Pro-Abortion.

The NZ Herald was the least biased outlet, but still favoured the Pro-Abortion message 70% to 30%.

Outlet	Pro Abortion Coverage	Pro Life Coverage	Number of Articles
Stuff	82%	18%	34
NZ Herald	70%	30%	30
Newshub	84%	16%	18
RNZ	89%	11%	14
TVNZ	83%	17%	13

It is worth noting that no individual journalist wrote more than three news articles in total on this topic, so it was not meaningful to measure reporter bias.

Conclusion

There can be no doubt that the Pro-Abortion position received a heavily biased share of the media coverage during the period under investigation.

Of all the media reports published thus far (covering the 2020 referendums on euthanasia⁶ and cannabis⁷, and the recent 'conversion therapy' debate⁸), this was the most biased coverage we have observed.

A minority of stories featured a Pro-Life point of view, but even these were always accompanied by Pro-Abortion perspectives.

By contrast, 44 news articles were exclusively Pro-Abortion in the opinions quoted.

The total bias of 82/18, although subjectively measured, is a deeply concerning observation.

Only 19% (17 stories) of News Articles could be considered balanced, with a further 11 stories only reporting facts without further commentary or discussion. This means less than a third of stories treated the issue with reasonable neutrality.

Whilst reviewers might dispute the scores assigned, readers cannot avoid the presence of the 44 News Articles (50% of all articles) that made no mention of the Pro-Life position.

The average bias assigned to News Articles was 82% Pro-Abortion to 18% Pro-Life. i.e. Pro-Abortion news articles were about 350% more biased on average.

44 News Articles (half of the total) were entirely Pro-Abortion. Every Pro-Life News Article had a Pro-Abortion opinion to counter.

61% of all Op-Eds were Pro-Abortion biased, with not a single Op-Ed presenting a Pro-Life position.

28% of all headlines had a Pro-Abortion Bias versus 5% having a Pro-Life bias.

Additional Commentary

by Family First NZ

If you believed the messaging from the mainstream media, you would probably think that the overwhelming majority of New Zealanders are supporters of abortion. But that is simply not true.

An independent poll of New Zealanders by Curia Market Research in 2018 found just half (52%) say they generally support abortion and 29% oppose, with 19% unsure.⁹

But the polling also found significant support for greater time limits (restrictions) on abortion than what was then the limit of 20 weeks under the old law (20+ weeks only for exceptional circumstances) - including support for stricter time limits from those who generally support abortion. There was an overwhelming rejection of any extension to the 20-week limit. The 2020 law has now extended this to 40 weeks subject to the approval of two abortion doctors!¹⁰

There was also strong support for legal safeguards such as a ban on sex selection, safeguards against coercion, and parental notification for teen abortions. None of these provisions are in the new law.

A subsequent 2019 poll found strong support for the unborn child having human rights and being legally protected once a heartbeat is detected (which can be between 6–12 weeks), and only a small minority thinking that life doesn't begin until the child is born.¹¹

It should also be noted that 51 Members of Parliament from Labour, National and NZ First voted against the new abortion law (68 MPs supported it).¹²

For this reason, the mainstream media should be presenting and actively seeking the views of both sides of this ongoing contentious but important debate.

ADDENDUM

At time of finalising this report, a disturbing example of the media pushing a Pro-Abortion narrative occurred.

Polling by Curia Market Research for the Taxpayers Union revealed that while support for the National Party remained strong, support for leader Christopher Luxon had fallen slightly (5.6%).¹³ Despite the week-long polling starting nine days after the Supreme Court decision, both *Stuff*¹⁴ and the *NZ Herald*¹⁵ immediately attributed the drop in support solely to Luxon's "pro-life" view and "his mishandling of abortion politics".

Yet, in terms of what issues respondents identified as their major voting issues, abortion did not even make the list. What did make the list was the cost of living, economy, health, housing, poverty, law and order, policies, environment, and COVID.

It was then revealed that the polling actually showed that National's support edged up amongst women in July, and was higher than the Labour government's.¹⁶

It appears that the earlier coverage and headline was more about pushing a media narrative rather than being based on an objective fact-based analysis of the polling.
